Two Boats Are Missing In Sleet Lashed Waters Of Winnipeg

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mother nature apparently was brewing additional weather disturbances today while searchers went about the grim business of trying to determine the fate of 26 persons aboard two vessels in Canadian waters.

The twenty-six were members of the crews and passengers aboard the Luberc and The Question Mark, which have been missing for five days on the icy waters of Lake Winnipeg.

Meanwhile there were warnings issued to craft off the North Atlantic coast to beware of a disturbance of tropical origin which was 200 miles east of Cape Hatteras last night, moving north and northeastward, attended by winds of hurricane proportion.

Midwest Warmer

The middle-Atlantic seaboard states were due for more cold weather today, the weather man said, after enjoying a moderation of low temperatures that prevailed earlier in the week. Snow and rain were threatened in some sections of the middlewest, with a prediction of somewhat higher temperature readings.

Snow flurries were predicted on Lake Superior after a premature blizzard yesterday, which swept this area ,forcing freighters to remain at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., because of a nor'wester that reached a velocity of 40 miles an hour.

Rain was forecast for parts of New England, with colder weather on Sunday.

In the southwest it was fair and warm.

Selkirk, Man., Oct. 27—(AP)—The anxious relatives of 26 missing men peered with wavering hope today out upon the sleet lashed waters of Lake Winnipeg.

Somewhere out there were two boats which had been missing five days with their crews and passengers, all of Selkirk.

One was the Luberc. With a crew of six and 15 fishermen, she left for winter fishing stations 250 miles northwest of here less than 48 hours before winds and snow tied up navigation here.

The other was The Question Mark carrying a crew of three and two passengers.

Airplanes zig-zagged over the lake today in the hope of finding the boats. So severe was the storm that inshore craft were converted in appearance to miniature icebergs.

The Luberc, a 90-foot oil burner built at a cost of $28,000, is owned by the Lake Manitoba Fisheries Company.

The Question Mark is a 50-footer owned by the Selkirk Navigation Company.

Four Arrested In Connection With Alleged Cattle Rustling In Vicinity Of Shaws Station

Amboyites Are Taken In Custody Following Investigation

Four residents of Amboy were taken in custody late last night and early this morning in connection with the investigation, conducted by Deputy Sheriff Ward Miller, of "cattle rustling" in the vicinity of Shaws. Dewey Gray, C. J. Fry, Ralph Matchin and Ralph Lair were brought to the county jail this morning to be questioned by State's Attorney Edward Jones.

It was reported that Deputy Miller had succeeded in tracing the disposition of a steer, which was killed and taken from the farm belonging to the Ives estate east of Amboy Wednesday night. The steer was shot, partially dressed and then hauled in a truck to the Matchin home in the west part of Amboy where it was cut up and divided, according to the report. The hide and other refuse parts were hauled south of Amboy where they were buried along a seldom travelled side road, and where they were dug up at an early hour this morning.

Some of the members of the quartet were said to have confessed their part in the killing and taking of the young steer and it was expected that information would be filed in the county court at the completion of the investigation which was still in progress this afternoon. It was also intimated that other arrests might result from the investigation in to the killing of cattle in the vicinity of Shaws recently.

INQUEST HELD INTO DEATH OF WARD OF STATE

Verie Nichols, Aged 28, Of Arcola, Found Dead Yesterday

Verie Nichols, 28-year-old Dixon state hospital patient, a native of Arcola, Ill., dropped dead about noon yesterday in the green house at the institution north of the city.. Nichols was the member of a working detail who had been sent to the propogation house and was found lying on the floor, his bdy partially beneath on of the benches, a few minutes after he had entered the building.

Staff physicians of the irstitution conducted a post mortem examination of the remains at the Jones funeral home yesterday afternoon, where Coroner Frank M. Banker of Franklin Grove conducted an inquisition. A jury returned a verdict finding that death was due to an epileptic seizure.

Nichols, an epileptic-feebleminded patient, was transferred to the Dixon institution in February 1929, from the Kankakee state hospital. He had previous to that time been an inmate of the Lincoln state school and colony. On June 11 of this year according to testimony at the inquest, he attempted suicide by hanging himself from the limb of a tree near the institution power house. He had formed a loop in a piece of baling wire which he had fastened to the limb of the tree and when the loop tightened about his throat he grasped the limb and called loudly for help. Other patients who were in the vicinity came to his assistance and succeeded in releasing the wire and taking him to the hospital ward. Nichols was said to have suffered severe epileptic seizures after which he was confused for some time and apparently did not know what he was doing. He was a member of one of the garden details at the institution.

$400,000 Worth Of Counterfeit Omaha Bonds Discovered

Omaha, Oct. 28 —(AP)—Forgery of Omaha city bonds, probably totaling more than $400,000, a $42,000 block of which was sold to a Chicago bank, was revealed in official quarters here today.

City officials have learned that $25,000 of the bonds had been sold to Omaha people, who, protected by the bond houses from which they made the purchases, have received refunds. How many more bonds are still in circulation has not been fully checked.

The bonds are forgeries of a $400,000 legitimate street improvement issue of November 1, 1925, due in 1945, and apparently have appeared on the market since the last interest date, last May 1.

The latest figures show that the Graf Zeppelin has made a total of 336 voyages.

EXECUTION DAY OF TWO TORTURE MURDERERS SET

Sentenced To Death In Chair At Chester December 22

Newton, Ill., Oct. 28 —(AP)—Denied a new trial and formally sentenced to death in the electric chair on Dec. 22, Harry Shelby, 44, and his nephew, John Allen, 26 convicted torture murderers of an 83-year-old farm woman probably will be taken to the Southern Illinois penitentiary today.

Attorneys for Shelby and Allen, both of Danville, Ill., said an appeal was unlikely because of the lack of funds.

Shelby sneered and Allen sniffed as Circuit Judge Thomas Jett, after denying motions for a new trial, passed formal sentence late yesterday.

"Too much for the kid (Allen)" Shelby told Judge Jett. "The kid should not have the same sentence I do. What you do to me is what I want. I'd rather die than do time in the pen. The kid is not to blame. He didn't know there was going to be a stickup."

A jury here Oct. 19 convicted Shelby and Allen of fatally beating and criminally assaulting Mrs. Mary Schrader in a robbery last August 29. She died the following day. Anna Schrader, 46, and Bernard Weldam, 84, daughter and brother of Mrs. Schrader, also were beaten and Miss Schrader was criminally attacked.

Shelby yesterday told Judge Jett that Vic Wright, slain at Robinson when he resisted arrest, was a member of the gang which invaded the Schrader home. Earl Stark Westville, Ill., indicted in the case, is a fugitive.

GREATEST POET OF AGE WILL BE HEARD IN DIXON

Edwin Markham To Appear At High School Monday Morning

Through the generosiey of Charles R. Walgreen, the pupils and teachers of Dixon high school and as many of the public as can get into the gymnasium gallery will have an opportunity to hear Edwin Markham, one of the world's most famous and beloved poets, Monday morning at 11:20 o'clock.

Mr. Markham, whose poem, "The Man With the Hoe," lifted him to a high place in the world of letters, is a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walgreen at their Hazelwood estate, and they have prevailed upon him and made it possible for him to appear publicly while in this city.

The noted visitor was born in Oregon City, Ore., April 12, 1852, and was attracted to poetry in his young manhood, when he began writing verse. But he gained only local recognition until he was 47 years of age, when, in a single day, he acquired fame through the one poem that has continued to be regarded as his masterpiece, the poem being inspired by Millet's great painting of the same name—"The

CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE IS KIDNAPED IN KENTUCKY

Posses Are Organized To Search For Victim Of Four Bandits

Pikeville, Ky., Oct. 28 —(AP)—Organization of a searching party to seek Willis Staton, about 55, candidate for Circuit Judge who was kidnaped yesterday by four masked men, was planned here today, as authorities sought to determine a motive for the abduction.

Reports of the kidnaping were brought here by Joe Staton, nephew of the missing man, who said the quartet stopped him and his uncle by blocking their automobile on a highway shortly before dawn yesterday as they were returning from a political rally at Pond Creek.

Young Staton said one of the four men handed his uncle a paper and said "sign that or die" and the elder Staton replied "I'll die."

After binding him to the automobile, Joe Staton said, the men drove away in their own car with his uncle.

"He was kidnaped by political enemies," Mrs. Staton declared when informed of her husband's abduction. She said her husband received two letters in the past few days telling him not to remain in the political race.

At the Sheriff's office belief was expressed that politics had nothing to do with Staton's abduction. Revenge was advanced as a possible motive.

CICERO EDITOR ASSASSINATED LATE YESTERDAY

No Clues To the Slayers Of Former Bondsman For Capone Gang

Chicago, Oct. 28 —(AP)— A wealthy newspaper publisher—Louis Cowen, 37, one time newsboy on the streets of suburban Cicero, became the latest victim of gangland tactics when he was shot to death.

A fusillade of shotgun slugs ended his career late yesterday afternoon as he sat behind the wheel of his expensive automobile in front of a motion picture theater in Cicero, where he published the Cicero Tribune, a weekly tabloid, and where he once acted as bondsman for members of Al Capone's gang.

Pedestrians scurried to cover as the killers , riding in a small automobile drew their machine alongside of Cowen's and blazed away. Three times they fired. Joseph Corngold, reputed bodyguard of the publisher, who was about to enter Cowen's car, was slightly injured by bullets. He took Cowen to a hospital, but physicians said he was dead before he arrived.

The five or six men witnesses said were in the gunmen's car escaped, leaving investigators with no clews but with plenty of angles to speculate on in connection with their efforts to find a motive. They heard reports that Cowen had been involved in gambling and in the slot machine business and explored these reputed connections for the reason for his demise.

The police also investigated to learn if he was connected in any way with Gus Winkler, northside gangster, recently slain, presumably because he knew too much about a $250,000 mail robbery.

Like Winkler, Cowen was wearing a diamond belt buckle when slain. Beside him in the car was a pistol, but his executioners worked so fast he had no chance to use it.

FIRST FATALITY IN MILK STRIKE IN BADGER STATE

Picket On Highway Is Fatally Shot: Three Men In Custody

(By The Associated Press.)

A Dane county, Wisconsin, farmer, picketting a highway near Madison last night became the first fatality of the current strike for cost of production.

The victim, Gundar Felland, was shot down by one of two men who were occupants of an automobile, apparently acting as convoy for a truck. Three brothers, one from Madison and two from Marshfield, were detained for questioning.

At Marshfield, physicians held little hope for the recovery of Theodore Weber, 29, who was beaten by pickets when he sought to drive a truck load of fence posts through a picket line.

Other Minor Clashes

From other parts of the state came reports of minor clashes resulting to injuries to a dozen or so persons.

Creameries and other milk plants continued to close, some voluntarily and some under pressure of strikers and sympathizers. The Chamber of Commerce of Eau Claire and representatives of milk distributing plants were polling farmers of Eau Claire to determine strike sentiment. It was agreed that the strike would be recognized by all handlers of milk if the poll showed a preponderance of favorable sentiment.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28 —(AP)— Frank McCorison, charged with first degree murder for the killing of Gundar Felland, a farmer, who was shot to death while watching a group of farm strikers picket a road near here, pleaded not guilty in Superior Court today and was held without bail for preliminary hearing next Wednesday.

McCorison, 31, whose home is here, was denied bail by Judge Roy Proctor. His brother, Harvey, 26, of Marshfield, pleaded not guily to a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm and was ordered held for hearing Wednesday, Judge Proctor set bond at $2500.

Jack McCorison, 24, Marshfield, the third of the brothers, arrested, after the shooting has not been charged.

FORD DEALER'S BID IN TRUCKS IS TURNED DOWN

Ford Co. Says Action Will Cost Taxpayers $200,000

Washington, Oct. 28 —(AP)— A stern decision to prosecute conspicuous vioators appears to have supplanted NRA's long exercised care to shelter its industrial program from court attack.

From the signing of the industrial law until now, Hugh S. Johnson has picked a course calculated to lead around the pitfalls of legal action. Attempts at vigorous enforcement have been mild, with a clearly indicated policy that an easy attitude would bring most results in the first objective of getting American industry and trade under codes.

But yesterday's outright promise of prosecution if and when Henry Ford should be found to be violating the automobile code, signalled a new readiness to face a constitutional test of the industrial law. This determination, coupled with a rigorous exclusion of Ford from government contracts, was backed by President Roosevelt. It was also accompanied by a statement from Johnson in regard to another code: "That's all right, we are not afraid of anybody taking anything to court."

Roosevelt's determination that, barring interference by the Comptroller General, the government would not buy products from Ford or any other manufacturer not under NRA, was viewed as sealing the administration's attitude on discipline.

Johnson said the same, adding that Ford "has publicly stated that he was not in sympathy with the code and he would never put into effect anything that looked toward collective bargaining."

Ford Exceeds Code

The Ford Motor Company promptly replied it "observes the law and exceeds it in all its real recovery features," when Johnson told the press he would turn a "clear-cut" violation of the code over to the Attorney General.

Submission of employment statistics to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce—the motor code authority—was likely to afford a clear-cut Ford test. NRA was seeking to determine immediatly what manufacturers plan to supply figures. There were intimations the Ford Motor Company, though not a member, would comply.

As for the bid of a Ford dealer on a forest conservation corps contract, Johnson said:

"I have taken the position that a great big billion dollar manufacturer cannot hide behind a $10,000 company."

"Johnson is not boycotting us," the Ford Motor Company retorted. "He is boycotting 5,300 American manufacturers who cooperate with Johnson. Not only has Johnson attempted a grave injustice upon a law-abiding American industry; he also has assumed to talk like a dictator and the Supreme Court combined."

Big Cost To Taxpayers

The company said the forest conservation bid was submitted by a dealer, not by the company. It said rejection of the bid will charge $200,000 to the taxpayers and charged Johnson with attempting "a grave injustice upon a law-abiding American industry."

Three Suspects Held In Peoria Are Identified As South Bend Indiana Bank Robbers Last Eve

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 28—(AP)—Three men identified as South Bend, Ind., bank robbers, remained in custody here today while officials of the Indiana city pondered steps necessary to return them for trial.

They were identified at a showup last night by two of the victims of the $2,500 holdup of last Tuesday of the Western State Bank, Henry Neimick, cashier, and Adam Woloszyn, a bank messenger, who were accompanied here by Detective Leo Berner of South Bend.

The men accused are Louis Badgett, Galesburg, Ill.; Howard McDonald, St. Louis; and Don Potter, Champaign, Ill., Neimick and Woloszyn also viewed Mr. and Mrs. June Buetnas of South Bend, but were unable to identify them.

Later Berner communicated with officials at South Bend and said a decision would be made soon as to extradition action.

Boy Wrote Extortion Notes To His Father So He Could Leave Home In The Evening, He Admits

St. Louis, Oct. 28—(AP)—Arraigned today on Federal charges of using the mails to extort, Robert E. Schwartz, 19-year-old high school boy, today was quoted by police as confessing he wrote letters to his father and a friend of the family so he could "get away in the evening."

An alleged confession represented the youth as saying he demanded that Emil Bucher, propritor of a shoe store and father of a chum, call him to the shop at night to discuss payment of $10,000.

Later he reputedly demanded $10,000 from Michael Schwartz, his father, and wrote Bucher instructions regarding the disposal of the money his father was to pay.

Penalty for using the mails to extort is imprisonment for not more than 20 years, a fine of not more than $5,000, or both. Both Bucher and the youth's father have indicted unwillingness to prosecute.

America's Greatest

Everywhere Mr. Markham is recognized as America's greatest poet. Of him Robert Johnson said "A poem by Markham is a national event"; Francis Grierson said "Edwin Markham is one of the greatest poets of the age and the greatest of democracy"; William Dean Howell stated that "except for my dear Whitcomb Riley Markham is first among American poets" and Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton University said "Edwin Markham's poem 'Lincoln' is the greatest poem that has ever been written on the immortal martyr and is the greatest that ever will be written."

Mr. Markham read it at the dedication of the Lincoln memorial in Washington, D. C., after it had been unanimously selected by a committee headed by Chief Justice William Howard Taft from over 300 poems on Lincoln, and 100,000 people heard it on the grounds and over 2,000,000 over the radio.

Further Honors

Next Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the "Little Church at the End of the Road" in Chicago the venerable poet will receive further honor when he will be presented with one of three medals awarded this year for most outstainding service to humanity. The presentation of the gold medal will be made by Rev. Erwin St. John Tucker and will mark the climax of the dedication of an Edwin Markham tree — a mountain ash. Mrs. Walgreen will accompany Mr. Markham to the ceremonies.

"Were Fairies an Actual Race of Men?" Discussed

Beliefs in fairies were at one time so universal and the superstitions which grew up regarding these tiny creatures have so many points in common that a lecture on the subject recently was given at the meeting of the British association, which is one of the world's most famous bodies of scientists, notes a writer in the Montreal Herald. This lecture, which had the intriguing title, "Were Fairies an Actual Race of Men?" treated the subject very seriously and was listened to most attentively. It is just possible that the legends about fairies had their root in fact. It is known that there have been successive migrations of races, and that in the course of these the aboriginal inhabitants of many countries have been wiped out by higher types.

So it may be that, when the Aryans, who were the ancestors of the Europeans of today, arrived in Europe, they drove the original Europeans—people of a different racial type—to the wilder and less habitable parts of the various countries, where colonies of them persisted for some time, living in underground burrows, and keeping up a guerilla warfare against their conquerors. This sort of thing has certainly happened in a number of other lands, and the lower race sometimes lingered on over long periods. If some Stone Age men, clinging to old habits, did actually survive side by side with later races, it would help to explain one of the most curious of all superstitions about fairies.

Toquilla Palm Is Used for White Panama Hats

Panama hats, which have earned a deserved celebrity under the name, are rarely manufactured in Panama, but are made in the neighboring states of South America. They originated during the gold rush in California in 1849. Prospectors purchased these straw hats in Panama and naturally called them Panama hats. Hats made from toquilla straw are made in Colombia, Peru and in Central America, and all of them are indiscriminately known as Panama.

Few male tourists leave the Canal Zone without one or more of these hats. Shops make a specialty of catering to the visitor.

The Panama hat is made from the leaf of the toquilla palm. The tree is cultivated for commercial purposes in Ecuador, Colombia and northern Peru. It becomes full-grown at eighteen months and lives for forty years or more. The straws are made from the new leaves, which are cut off just as they are about to unfold, and are split with needles on the fingernail.

AROUND THE CORNER

AROUND the corner I have a friend
In this great city which has no end;
Yet days go by and weeks rush on,
And before I know it a year is gone,
And I never see my old frend's face,
For life is a swift and terrible race
He knows I like him just as well
As in the days when I rang his bell
And he rang mine. We were young then;
And now we are busy, tired men—
Tired with playing foolish game;
Tired with trying to make a name.
"Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim
Just to show that I am thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes— and tomorrow goes;
And the distance between us grows and grows.
Around the corner—yet miles away
"Here's a telegram sir," Jim died today!
And that's what we get — yes, deserve in the end—
Around the corner, a vanished friend.

—Charles Hanson Towne

Delightful Party Thursday Evening

Misses Garland Utz and Alice Emmert entertained fourteen of their Freshman friends with a masquerade party on Thursday evening, Oct. 26, at the Emmert home on College avenue.

There wasn't a dull moment from the arrival of the first guest. Hooded brigands, gypsy girls, a Spanish bolero costume, a real honest to goodnesse ghost, the padded lady, also a metamorhose of some who were old into their second childhood and those in their 'teens into old ladies of the eighties, with the valuable Jew who earnestly recommended the purchase of the suit with "two pair of pents."

Decorations and games were in keeping with the tradition of Hallowe'en.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Alice Shuck, Miss Olive McClanahan and Mrs. Ruth Emmert, after which the guests reluctantly dispersed that they might reach their homes in time for a short beauty nap before twelve o'clock.

Halloween Frolic For Student Nurses

Thursday evening the student nurses of the Katherine Shaw Bethea hospital entertained friends with a Hallowe'en masquerade party at the Nurses home which was cleverly decorated. Miss Margaret Luke, chairman of the entertainment committee planned an enjoyable evening, including games and dancing. Prizes were awarded to those wearing the most original costumes. The winners were Miss Helen Martha as Topsy and Paul Peterson as a gangster. A floor show, featuring Topsy, Miss Martha, and Izzie, Miss Bernice Larson, was quite sensational.

Refreshments were enjoyed and all in all the evening was most successful and enjoyable.

Another Capacity Crowd at Bazaar

Another capacity crowd attended the annual bazaar of St. Anne's parish at St. Anne's hall last evening, enjoying the dancing and other entertainment features, and during the evening Miss Helen Swarts was awarded a beautiful tea set. The bazaar will close this evening with dancing and the awarding of a 5-gallon can of oil, donated by C. E. Poisel.

Dorothea Wieck Opposes Mae West View That Apparel Should Show Up Form

Dorothea Wieck

By DOROTHEA WIECK
(Written for NEA Service

I am for concealment.

I believe that men, and women, too, are attracted by the unattainable.

When women wore leg-o'mutton sleeves and high-necked gowns, in the Victorian era, they had as many beaux as they have today. Then, it was the promise in a woman's eyes, her smile and studied grace that quickened the pulses of her admirers.

The personality of a woman is somehow affected by the clothes she wears. Give her a gown that is too decollete, and she becomes too self-conscious to play the siren. Let her wear a gown that is utterly simple, though chic, and she becomes a siren in reality.

Women lose a certain sense of poise when they are conscious of their clothes. My screen work taught me that. When I first went into pictures, my director had me wear a blond wig. I became a personality to match that wig, instead of remaining myself. If I hadn't realized my mistake in time, I'm afraid it would have ended my career as an actress.

When the part of the plain fraulein was offered to me, in "Maedchen in Uniform," I was happy that I was to wear a plain dress. There were no adornments to my clothes, no trinkets to play with. I just had to make people like me without effective clothes.

Yes, I'm for concealment. A great deal of chic, perhaps, but a little concealment. It's an excellent tonic for the imagination.

Mae West

DOROTHEA WIECK
By MAE WEST
(Written for NEA Service)

I'm all for revealment.

If a girl's got a swell figure, what's the use of hiding it?

I'm proud of my "figger," have worked for years developing it, and now that I've arrived, I don't see why I should be selfish and keep it a secret.. do you?

A woman should look just as beautiful without any clothes, in my opinion, as when she is clad in the finest creations of Schiaparelli and all those other hifalutin' Paris designers.

Of course, I'm not advocating nudism or anything like that, you understand! I may be plenty hot, but I'm no Hottentot!!

There's never been a real woman who didn't love pretty clothes, adornments and fine feathers—and I am proud to be considered just a real woman myself — but clothes should reveal the feminine form, rather than conceal it. That always has been one of my creeds. I adopted that fashion rule in my sage play, "Diamond Lil" and in my picure "She Done Him Wrong," in which I portrayed a glamorous woman of the Gay Nineties.

Maybe I'm wrong. Maybe 50,000,000 Frenchmen can't be wrong, but I guess those few Frenchmen who create the new styles figured I must have been right, because now they have declared those same styles fashionable for today.

Tested Recipes And Worthwhile Household Suggestions Passed On By Good Housewives Of Dixon

Following are a number of good recipes tried and tested by Dixon women:

German Pancake

3 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup flour, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter. Beat eggs until very light, add salt and flour and then the milk, beating all the time. Spread bottom and sides of 10 inch cast iron frying pan with butter—pour in batter and bake in hot oven. Have oven hot and bake 20 to 25 minutes, reducing heat as pancake browns. It should puff up at the side and be crisp and brown. Place on hot platter. Serve with powdered sugar and lemon juice. This will serve 4 or 6 people.

—Mrs. Alfred W. Hoyt,
Blackhawk Trail

Doughnuts

1 cup sugar, pinch of salt, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs beaten light, a few drops of vanilla and a little nutmeg, 3 cups of flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder (level). Handle dough soft as possible.

—Mrs. Alfred W. Hoyt,
Blackhawk Trail

Chop Suey

Heat skillet. Brush it over with grease.

Take ½ bottle of chop suey sauce. Add to it 1 lb. round steak; ½ lb. pork shoulder, diced, that has been previously soaked in cold water. Cook meat 15 or 20 minutes. Cut three large stalks of celery, 1 large Bermuda onion, into small pieces and soak them in cold water. Drain and add to meat with one teaspoon sugar and a little pepper. Cook under cover until vegetables are tender. For a larger quantity add cans if suey bean sprouts or vegetables. Serve with rice and chop suey noodles.

—Mrs. Harry Edwards

Orange Sponge

3 orange rinds grated and juice of one lemon.
1 cup sugar.
1 tablespoon gelatin put to soak in ½ cup of water. When dissolved add ½ cup boiling water, add juice and let it stand until it jells firm.

Then add whites of 3 or 4 eggs, beaten dry. Put in dish in refrigerator to harden. Serve with whipped cream.—Mrs. Fred Rising, Los Angeles, Calif., formerly of Dixon.

Ginger Cookies

1 cup sugar
1 cup bacon grease or butter
1 cup New Orleans molasses.
2 eggs
2 teaspoons ginger
3 teaspoons soda dissolved in 1 tablespoon hot water.

Flour enough to roll. Just stiff enough to handle.

—Mrs. Edward Murphy,
Oak Park.

Household Hints

Durng vegetable canning, jars of soup mixtures may be put up to supply a variety of vegetables for soups and stews by opening only one can. Corn, beans, celery, onion, green pepper, and minced parsley mak a good combination.

Baking soda can be used to remove grease and discoloration from the electric waffle iron and leave it bright and clean.

To make boiled vegetables popular with the family, drop them in boiling salted water and cook them without a cover only until they are tender. This preserves flavor, color and texture as well as food value.

If you dip your knife in boiling water each time, you can cut or slice hard boiled eggs without braeking them.

Just a drop of wintergreen will sweeten your icebox and absorb all food odors.

If you wish to keep lemons indefinitely cover them with cold water, changing it weekly. This makes them ripe and juicy.

It is better to open a can of asparagus on the bottom; in this way you can remove the tips without breaking.

Do you know that vinegar will whiten potatoes. Add a teaspoon full in the water. It will not taste in the potatoes.

Paraffin will stop leaks in your icebox.

Now that the game season is here you might like to know that wild ducks are easily picked by rolling them in melted paraffin. As soon as this cools it peels right off carrying all the feathers and down with it, leaving the skin of the duck perfectly clean.

Always put your knife in boiling water before cutting a frosted cake. There will be no broken frosting.

The advanced officers of Dorothy Chapter, O. E. S., have all of their decorations ready to place on the tables as well as the stage in the big dining room of the Dixon Masonic Temple for their advanced officers night, which is to take place next Monday evening, Oct 30. The committee who have had charge of preparing these novel decorations expect to work Sunday afternoon so that everything will be completed in plenty of time.

The committee in charge of the dining room have assured the officers in charge of the meeting that every item of this big turkey dinner has been arranged for. The turkeys have already been selected, and all arrangements have been made to have them properly dressed and roasted, and all of the accessories, which include oyster dressing, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, salads, fruits, nuts, etc., that will go to make up this elaborate dinner, have been arranged for.

The number of reservations which have been made for this dinner already assure the officers in charge that this will be one of the largest gatherings that has been held in the Dixon Masonic Temple for some time. It is not too late yet to telephone either Mrs. Mazie Hoberg, X935, or Mrs. Lela Bush, Y893. A great many of the reservations have been made by the officers of the surrounding chapters, each of whom expect to bring a number of their fellow members.

A number of pleasant surprises are in store for all who will attend this delightful dinner and the meeting which will follow it.

Mrs. Willey Entertains Social Circle

The ladies of the Prairieville Social Circle were entertained by Mrs. Myron Willey of Dixon on Wednesday. The meeting was well attended. Twenty-three members answered roll call and five guests and eleven children were present. Mrs. Paul McGinnis, a former member of the society, was welcomed back into the Circle. This being old clothes day, the wearing apparel of the ladies was very amusing. After the business period, contests and games were enjoyed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Rutt of Prairieville and a good attendance is desired.

Halloween Party For Zion Household Science Club

A Halloween party was held by the members of the Zion Household Science Club Thursday afternoon, Oct 26, with Mrs. Carrie Laursen and Mrs. Esther Peterson at the home of the former south of Dixon.

Mrs. Senneff of Rock Falls was cleverly attired in a witches costume meeting the guests at the basement door and escorting them on to the main floor which was decorated in real Halloween style.

The old witch drew the fortune for each guest from an iron kettle on a wooden paddle which was carefully wrapped in small tissue paper. The reading of the fortune afforded much merriment among the guests.

The door prize went to Mrs. Kathryn Metz. The prize for the prettiest costume was won by Miss Jesse Sweitzer and Mrs. Blanche McKeel took the prize for the funniest dressed.

A prize was awarded Mrs. Scott of Sterling for guessing most correctly the number of kernels on an ear of corn.

Miss Jesse Sweitzer claimed another prize in a writing contest.

During the afternoon plans were made to have a sausage and waffle supper Thursday evening, Nov. 16, at the home of Mrs. Joe Lund on the Harmon road. Everyone is cordially invited.

Mrs. Laursen and her able assistant served a very delicious lunch.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Mildred Geiger and Mrs. Olive Genz.

World's Temperance Sunday, October 29th

World's Temperance Sunday, Oct. 29th, affords one more opportunity for church school teachers to bring to the youth the facts concerning the evil effects of alcoholic drinks.

Lesson text: Romans 13:12-14; 14:7-9, 15-21.

Golden text: Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; love therefore is the fulfillment of the law.

"To modernize one of the texts in the lesson, make it read, 'Therefore it is good neither to drink beer nor any alcoholic liquor, whereby thy brother stumbleth or is made weak.' Total abstinence from all alcoholic liquors pays and is a sure preventive of the drink habit."

This lesson for World's Temperance Sunday brings us once more face to face with the fact that good men are not always of the same mind on matters of public welfare. Why, then, should it be thought an indication that temperance legislation is an infringement of personal liberty because not every voters favors it? The beginning of social relations sounds the knell of personal liberty. If men are to live together they must yield personal preferences and abide by regulations which promote the greatest good of the greatest number. The "speed demon" is forbidden to drive sixty miles an hour on city streets; the careless housewife is not allowed to throw garbage in the alley; the farmer is required to cut noxious weeds on his property lest the seeds infest his neighbors' fields. No one grumbles much at these restraints; then why the outcry when organized society decrees the men shall not pursue a course of action which makes them a menace on the highway and a "stumbling block" everywhere. Not long ago our sister republic on the south devised a unique plan of temperance education which we may imitate without any "infringement of patent." It was sponored by President Portes Gil. In Mexico City the children of the grade schools prepared posters showing "The Evils of Alcohol," each child portraying his own idea of the harm caused by drink. The posters were shown in various places in the city and attracted large crowds.

For The Home

It was a lovely October morning, but the Holcombs were not thinking about it. Shortly before dawn two cars had crashed together on the highway in front of the house. The undertaker had taken the dead away. In the Holcombs' guest room lay a young man, blinded and maimed for life. Only half conscious, he muttered now and then something about taking one more drink. Gravely Mr. Holcomb sat beside him, ready to use his strength to keep the sufferer in bed when paroxysms of pain made him writhe and struggle to rise. White-faced but efficient, Mrs. Holcomb laid cold compresses over the sightless eyes.

The farm hands cleared away the wreckage. Presently the ambulance came from the city. The young man was quieted by a hypodermic and carried out of the guest chamber. When the car had crept out of sight the Holcombs went back to the house. Then Mrs. Holcomb spoke in a quiet voice which had a steely ring of determination in it. "Come down cellar," she said, "all of you." The mother flung open the doors of a cupboard in which were orderly rows of bottles labeled, "dandelion wine," "elderberry wine," "grape wine." "These," she said, "are to be carried out, every one and broken on the stone pile. Take as many as you can carry, John; Junior, you follow Daddy; Bob and Betty, take two apiece." In answer to her husband's look, she added: "How do I know that poor boy didn't begin with his mother's dandelion wine? Never again, John."

May Christian people lead the way to the general acceptance of the fact that it is worth as much effort on our part to establish young people in total abstinence principles as it is to reform them after they have gone astray.

"Looking into the future, let Christian men and women agree in another statement: "Whatever is morally wrong cannot be economically right, and let us each say, I will have no fellowship with iniquity framed by law. 'The bottle' should have no place in the Christian home".

THE PUBLIC AGAIN FINDS ART FOR THE CRITICS.

One of the pleasant things about the people of the United States is the fact that in a time like the present, when history is being made by wholesale and signs and portents are crossing the sky so fast that they tread on one another's heels, they can devote themselves whole-heartedly to a lilting little song about a big bad wolf.

The song itself is of the simplest. It points no moral, and, if it adorns a tale, the tale is nothing but a moving picture version of an old nursery fable. But somehow everybody is going for it, whistling it, humming it, grinning fondly over the memory of a couple of pink porkers dancing across a colored celluloid landscape.

There is, in fact, only one disturbing thought in connection with it; the thought that presently the highbrow critics will "discover" it, and will write erudite articles for the rough-paper reviews telling about the "significance" of these cartoon comedies, discussing their artistic value, and using a lot of four-bit words to say what the ordinary movie-goer already knows—that these things are a lot of fun, and clever as the dickens.

That sort of thing happens every so often. Ring Lardner was acclaimed by the highbrows as a genius when he died. But the great American public discovered him long before the serious critics so much as knew his name; they discovered him when he was writing for the newspapers and the nickel magazines, and they knew that he was uncommonly good without waiting to be told.

It was the same with Charlie Chaplin. He had sent millions of ordinary folk into convulsions of laughter for years before the graybeards began to write soulfully about his "great art" and his "cosmic significance."

A great artist? Assuredly; but the man in the street, who knows nothing of art, was the first one to find it out.

So it was, too, with newspaper comic strips. Several years ago a critic wrote a book to point out that the comic strips were not only funny, but offered a valuable sidelight on American life and constituted a true expression of the American spirit.

But what of it? Newspaper readers knew it already.

Presently, then, we shall be hearing fine things about three little pigs and the big bad wolf. Meanwhile—well, why do the critics lag behind the public in their appreciation of what really is good?

PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY.

Once more Hallowe'en is upon us; and once more weary householders find themselves faced with the unpleasant problem of trying to decide where healthy youthful effervescence ends and plain rowdyism begins.

That youngsters should go about the streets on Hallowe'en ringing doorbells, tapping on window panes, and so on is natural and harmless enough. That they occasionally should upset the dignity of staid citizens is only to be expected. But the antics that accompany Hallowe'en don't always stop there.

To smear the bodies and windows of automobiles with wax, thereby causing the owner a couple of hours of hard work, isn't quite as screamingly funny as it might be. To begin the Hallowe'en parade two weeks ahead of time, as some youngsters do, is carrying a good thing just a little too far. To destroy property and create a neighborhood disturbance hardly comes under the head of harmless childish fun.

The remedy is up to parents. It's about time some of them began keeping their children from making nuisances of themselves.

The American people seem to prefer any foreigner on the lecture platform, no matter how ill informed, to an American who knows his subject thoroughly.—James B. Pond, impresario.

If we could prevent publishers from publishing novels, we might be the happiest land in the world.—Hugh Walpole.

Amateur tennis would be swell if there weren't so many investigators and advisers.—Ellsworth Vines, amateur tennis champ turned pro.

The Tinies grew impatient. One said, "Gee, when will our fish be done. It has been in that big oven for a half an hour, or more.

"Don't let it burn. It would be sad to spoil the biggest fish we have had. I am hungry and I am anxious for that treat that is in store."

"Don't worry," said the fisherman. "I'll serve as quickly as I can. I want the fish cooked nice and brown. It tastes the best that way.

The two girls can stay here with me. I will keep them busy as can be, just filling up your plates. The rest of you can run and play."

He waited for a while, and then called all the Tinies back again. "We are ready for you," Dotty cried. "Sit right down on the ground.

"I'll hand you each your plate of fish." "Oh, gee, lads, what more could we wish?" said Duncy. Then he got his plate and cried, "Its nicely browned."

The fisherman soon joined the rest. Said he, "I like the stuffing best. I am glad that Goldy had the hunch to bake the fish this way.

"Eat slowly, Tinymites. Then you will feel all right when you are through. I suppose you all will take a nap, to finish out the happy day."

"You are right," said Duncy. "Eating makes me seepy, but it brings no aches. I am through right now, and so a little snooze appeals to me."

Just then wee Dotty jumped and cried, "Oh, look! A great big squirrel I have spied. It is dressed in funny clothes and peeping out from yonder tree."

The fisherman said, "That little squirrel is tame." He called to it, and out it came. "I'll bet it's hungry," Dotty cried, "although it looks quite fat."

She held some bread out on a plate. The squirrel didn't hesitate, to show appreciation. It bowed down and tipped its hat.

(The Tinies see a funny boxing match in the next story.)

PRINCIPAL FEATURES OF RETAILERS' CODE

Main points of the retail trade's code, approved by President Roosevelt applying to Dixon stores are:

Child Labor

No person under the age of 16 years shall be employed, except that persons fourteen (14) and fifteen (15) years of age may be employed either,

(a) For a period not to exceed three (3) hours per day on six (6) days per week, or

(b) For one day per week, such day not to exceed eight (8) hours.

In either case, all such hours of work shall be between 7 A. M. and 7 P. M., and shall not conflict with the employe's hours of day school. It is provided, however, that no person under the age of sixteen (16) years shall be employed in the delivering of merchandise from motor vehicles.

Basic Store Working Hours

Group A. Any establishment may elect to remain open for business less than 56 hours, but not less than 52 hours per week, unless its store hours were less than 52 hours prior to June 1, 1933, in which case such establishment shall not reduce its store hours; no employe of these establishments shall work more than 40 hours per week, nor more than 8 hours per day, nor more than six days per week.

Group B. Any establishment may elect to remain open for business 56 hours or more per week but not less than 63 hours per week; no employe of such establishment shall work more than 44 hours per week, nor more than 9 hours per day, nor more than six days per week.

Group C. Any establishment may elect to remain open for business 63 hours or more per week; no employe of such establishment shall work more than 48 hours per week, nor more than 10 hours per day, nor more than 6 days per week.

No employe not included in the foregoing paragraphs shall work more than 40 hours per week, nor more than 8 hours per day, nor more than 6 days per week.

Any establishment may at any time increase its store hours, provided it maintains the basic employe work week of the group in which it originally elected to operate.

Shorter Time; Pay Same

Any establishment may, for a period not to exceed three months during the summer, temporarily reduce its store hours, but the weekly wages of its employes shall not on that account be reduced.

The maximum periods of labor prescribed shall not apply to professional persons employed and working at their profession, or to outside salesmen, outside collectors, watchmen, guards, and store detectives.

The maximum periods of labor prescribed shall not apply to maintenance and outside service employes, but such employes shall not work more than six hours per week above the maximum hours per week otherwise prescribed unless they are paid at the rate of time and one-third for overtime.

Executives receiving $35 or more per week in cities of over 500,000 population, or receiving $30 or more per week, in cities of 100,000 to 500,000 population, or receiving $27.50 or more per week in cities of 25,000 to 100,000 population, or receiving $25 or more per week in cities, towns, villages, and other places under 2,5000 population may work in excess of the maximum periods of labor prescribed.

In the south executives paid not less than 10 per cent below the wages just specified may work in excess of such maximum periods.

Peak Periods

At Christmas, inventory, and other peak times, for a period not to exceed two weeks in the first six months of the calendar year and not to exceed three weeks in the second six months, an employe whose basic work week is 40 hours may work not more than 48 hours per week and nine hours per day; an employe whose basic work week is 44 hours may work not more than 52 hours per week and nine and one-half hours per day; an employe whose basic work week is 48 hours may work not more than 56 hours per week and ten hours per day. All such work may be without the payment of overtime.

Hours to Be Consecutive

The hours worked by any employe during each day shall be consecutive, provided that an interval not longer than one hour may be allowed for each regular meal period, and such interval not counted as part of the employe's working time. Any rest period which may be given employes shall not be deducted from such employes working time.

On one day each week employes may work one extra hour, but such hour is to be included within the maximum hours permitted each week.

The wages of all employes shall be increased from the rates existing on June 1, 1933, by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require an increase in wages to more than the rate of $11.00 per week and provided further that no employe shall be paid less than at the rate of $10 per week.

Part Time Employes

Part time employes shall be paid not less than at an hourly rate proportionate to the rates prescribed.

The weekly wages of all classes of employes receiving more than the minimum wages prescribed in this article shall not be reduced from the rates existing upon July 15, 1933, notwithstanding any reduction in the working hours of such employes.

Price Increase Limitations

No retailer shall increase the price of any merchandise sold after the effective date of this code over the price existing June 1, 1933 by more than is made necessary by the amount of increases in production, operating, replacement, and or invoice costs of merchandise, and or by taxes or other costs resulting from action taken pursuant to the national industrial recovery act and or the agricultural adjustment act since June 1, 1933, and in setting such price increases, retailers shall give full weight to probable increases in sales volume.

Loss Limitation

To prevent unfair competition against local merchants, the use of the so-called "loss leader" is hereby declared to be anunfair trade practice. These "loss leaders" are articles often sold below cost to the merchant for the purpose of attracting trade. This practice results, of course, either in efforts by the merchant to make up the loss by charging more than a reasonable profit for other articles, or else in driving the small merchant with little capital out of legitimate business. It works back against the producer of raw materials on farms and in industry and against the labor so employed.

This declaration against the use of "loss leaders" by the store keeper does not prohibit him from selling an article without any profit to himself. But the selling price of articles to the consumer should include an allowance for actual wages of store labor, to be fixed and published from time to time by the trade authority hereinafter established.

Provided, however, that any retailer may sell any article of merchandise at a price as low as the price set by any competitor in his trade area on merchandise which is identical or essentially the same, if such competitor's price is set in conformity with the foregoing provision.

A retailer who thus reduces a price to meet a competitor's price as above defined shall not be deemed to have violated the provisions of this section if such retailer immediately notifies the nearest representative retail trade organization of such action and all facts pertinent thereto.

Fixes Advertising Policy

All retailers shall comply with the following trade practices:

No retailer shall use advertising whether printed, radio, or display, or of any other nature, which is inaccurate in any material particular or misrepresents merchandise (including its use, trade-mark, grade, quality, quantity, size, origin, material, content, preparation, or curative or therapeutic effect), or credit terms, values, policies or services; and no retailer shall use advertising and or selling methods which tend to deceive or mislead the customer.

No retailer shall use advertising which refers inaccurately in any material particular to any competitor or his merchandise, prices, values, credit terms, policies, or services.

No retailers shall use advertising which inaccurately lays claim to a policy or continuing practice of generally underselling competitors.

PILLAR OF SALT

By L. L. R.

Mr. Bundy, as you have no doubt guessed by now, is a man of varied accomplishments. He is master of the spheres into which he has delved; and by no means the least of these is the field of invention.

Necessity is the mother of his inventions, so he says, and his gifts to humanity invariably relieve long-felt needs. His great concern (first, last, and always) is to make his fellowmen more contented.

His latest brain-child has not yet made its debut. It is completely perfected but a working model has not been made. When it is finally demonstrated, however, there is little doubt that Mr. Bundy will be accorded the acclaimation he deserves.

For years he has watched, through sad eyes, the decline of the old parlor organ. His ears have ached in a vain effort to bring back its old melodies from the land to which it has departed. But he has heard only the rustle of the dry grass over its grave.

Knowing that many others, too, have been longing for the sweet strains of the old-fashioned organ music, he has answered their mental supplications. Long, silently, and diligently has he labored and at last his secret will be revealed.

His entire plan hinges upon the fact that the pink-tipt fingers of the modern lass have been trained to play over the keyboard of the typewriter. This is the very key to the invention which will again put an organ in every parlor not to mention two cars in every organ maker's garage.

Each organ will be supplied with a typewriter keyboard, instead of the old keys and stops. To add the modern touch, this keyboard will operate the organ by remote control; because Mr. Bundy will provide for its installation close to the most comfortable chair in the house.

The principle of operation is based upon the fact that modern woman knows the typewriter keyboard. As she punches the keys, the electrically operated organ will peal forth soothing music for the whole household to enjoy.

The music itself will reresent the most revolutionary part of the invention. Certain letters and symbols will coincide with certain notes in the organ. "XRZZZBC" means little to us, but to Mr. Bundy it means "Moonlight and Roses."

And so we find Mr. Bundy's humanitarian heart once more giving to the world a marvelous thing. He lives that others may be happy.

BOWLERS START GETTING RANGE; RECORDS TUMBLE

Good Scores Recorded In League Contests During The Week

The fact that bowling has afforded the sporting public a breathing spell from all present depression difficulties", is verified by the unforced laughter which is evoked by the eighty bowlers present at the Recreation bowling parlors on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, in City and Classic League competition. All signs of gloom and sorrow are evicted on these nights, when 16 high class bowling squads take to the shiny drives and prove to the many fans present just how invincible they each are in the art of pin toppling. Many exciting and exceedingly interesting league and match games are in the making for the fall and winter months, and the public is now extended a cordial welcome to attend at any time. A special invitation is extended to the ladies, whose husbands bowl in either the City or Classic Leagues.

New Records

Brownie's Punks entrapped a new team series record for the City League Tuesday night by spilling games of 929, 975, 928 making a combined total of 2832. Chester Chapman taking the individual honors for high series of 560, and Harold Schertner the high single game of 217.

The Dixon Post Office team still holds high team single game with their big score of 933.

Edward Worley, who is a Brady Villager by name, extinguished Walter Fallstrom's high single count of 243 and series of 606, by amassing a big single count of 245 his first game Tuesday night, and continued the remaining two games in fair style to end his series with a new individual record series of 611 for the City league. Worley also heads the list of high averages with a present average of 195 for the nine games rolled thus far.

Lawrence Poole of the Borden Condensory team is second with 190.1 for six games.

Robert Harridge of Brownie's Punks holds down third berth with 181.3 for nine games.

Walter Fallstrom of the Florists is in fourth place in individual averages with 180.7 for nine games.

Chester Chapman of Brownie's Punks is averaging 179 flat for six games to date.

Scotty's-Post Office Tied

Scotty's Hop Inn, and the Dixon Post Office have proven themselves the most effectual in the way of winning games to date, with a winning column of 6 and a defeated list of 3.

Hayden's Service Station, Borden's Condensory, and Fallstrom's Florists are also very agreeable as to their ability up to the present with a duplicate copy of 5 wins, and 4 losses.

Brady's Villagersis the only team in the City League which is not tied for some respective position, this team having won 4 and lost 5 to date.

The cellar position is a bad place during the winter months and the National Tea and Brownie's Punks have decided to vacate next week.

Kroger's vs Hayden's

Results of the Kroger store vs Hayden Service match left Krogers with 2 wins and Haydens 1. Kenneth Lair of the Kroger five put on an impressive performance during this match, rolling high single game of 212 and hitting high series of 575. The Kroger team accounted for a series of 2741, while Hayden's displaced 2730 pins during the encounter.

Borden's vs Brady's

The Borden Condensory team insisted on two victories in Tuesday night's match with the Brady Villagers, and emerged with a double win to their credit. Borden's 2766, Brady's 2614.

Edward Worley of the Brady entry initiated a new individual single game record during this series when he shot 245 his first game, and in spite of his two less prominent remaining games crowned himself with a new City league series record of 611.

Post Office vs Brownie's Punks

The Dixon post office bowlers outclassed Brownie's Punks with the exception of Ralph Salzman himself, who is now better known as "The King Split Picker," having received a big hand Tuesday night, when he picked up a split deserving much credit to the maker. The Post Office team won the odd game during this league contest, rolling games of 948, 891 955, totaling 2766, as against games of 929 975, 928 for the Punks.

Chester V. Chapman of the Punks rolled the big series for this match with 560 pins. Lloyd Duffy getting the high single game mention with 221 his second game, as additional honors to the Post Office team.

Fallstrom's vs National Tea

The Fallstrom Florists came through Thursday night, in their postponed game with the National Tea store, with a straight set of three wins and no defeats.

Walter Falltrom outpointed his teammates and opponents with a high series of 517, and high single game of 203.

Meager scores were recorded during this series, the Florists hitting 2529 and the National Tea 2380.

BAREFIELD AND MICHALETTI IN WRESTLING BOUT

Grappled 20 Minutes Without Fall At Spring Valley

"Mickey" Barefield of this city went to Spring Valley Thursday evening where he engaged "Cowboy" Jenkins Michaletti of that city in a wrestling match, which was a part of an athletic program. The grapplers went through the agreed time then took five minutes more and neither secured a fall. The following report of the match was contained in the LaSalle Post-Tribune:

"Cowboy Jenkins" Michaletti of Spring Valley and Joe Barefield of Dixon were the principals in the grapling business. The Spring Valley boy making his debut in the ring, weighed in at 165 pounds, giving away five pounds to his more experienced opponent.

"While they were to battle 15 minutes for the best two out of three falls the gong at the close of the 15 minutes of antics which had the house in a veritable uproar at times, found the business all square. Neither had been able to win a fall, although each at times, had been in a position to pin the other to the canvas but just missed.

"Following a two-minute rest, they were permitted, in answer to their own requests, to go five minutes more in an effort to establish a winner. The extra five minutes was packed with more excitement than the first section, although that had been thrilling enough. In this grapling Michaletti had a distinct advantage and had the match been extended a few more minutes he would probably have won. At the opening of the extra session Barefield dove headlong at Michaletti, who sidestepped and the Dixon grappler went flying out of the ring into the crowd. He got back at a count of nine and they went at it viciously again. It was only a moment before they both fell out of the ring, clambering in as Referee "Goats" Doig counted 16. Just before the final bell Michaletti tossed Barefield over his shoulders twice and the latter was groggy at the bell."

AMBOY DEFEATS MT. MORRIS BY SCORE OF 19 TO 0

Harold Glessner Was Star Of Game In Amboy Yesterday P. M.

(Telegraph Special Service.)

Amboy, Oct. 28 — Amboy township high school team triumphed over Mt. Morris Friday afternoon at Amboy in the third conference game of the season by a count of 19 to 0. An extreme cold wind swept across the field and kept a large crowd of fans hopping about to keep warm. This same cold wind must have pepped up the local squad as they played a hard brand of football from the first kickoff until the final whistle.

During the first few minutes of play William "Bill" Hightover, the Mt. Morris star center had the misfortune to have his knee cap displaced while attempting to intercept an Amboy forward pass. Harold Glessner was clearly the hero of the day, making two of the touchdowns on several long runs.

The first quarter ended with the ball on the Mt. Morris four yard line in Amboy's possession. Glessner took the ball across for the score on the first play in the second quarter. Leake passed to Tourtillott for the extra point after the touchdown.

The second touchdown was made by Jay Smith in the third quarter after Trickett had caught a 25 yard pass thrown by Leake. His attempt to pass for the extra point was unsuccessful.

During the fourth quarter Arthur Shippert recovered a Mt. Morris fumble on the visitors' 30-yard line. On the next play Amboy drew a five yard penalty for being off-side. "Red" Smith cut through tackle for a nice gain. Then Glessner was given the ball and in his spectacular fashion of twisting and hopping, ran 28 yards for the third touchdown. Leake again attempted a pass which was incomplete.

CONTACT GLASSES

There is one condition of the eye known as conical cornea, which ordinarily glasses are not able to correct.

For in conical cornea, as the Ename indicates, the cornea—that is, that portion of the eye which is in front of the pupil— instead of being shaped like a section of a sphere, is cone-shaped, the center arising to a point-like prominence.

This defect makes sharp vision practically impossible. It is a form of astigmatim for which the ordinary glasses offer little relief.

For years efforts have been directed at remedying this type of eye defect.

In 1888 one Dr. Fick recommended that a glass approriately curved be placed directly over the defective cornea, and that the space between the glass and the eyeball should be filled with a salt solution.

The combination of this kind of a glass with a salt solution, he declared, would give the sufferer a spherical lens with which he might see normally.

The manufacture of such contact glasses proved a very difficult task and one that was not really accomplished until within very recent times.

Now contact glasses are available. These glasses, shaped to conform to the eyeball, are worn directly on the eye. The hollow part of the contact glass is filled with a salt solution, the eyelids are drawn apart, the glass is directly applied to the eye and is held there by capillary attraction and by the pressure of the lids.

Remarkable as are the contact glasses, they cannot be used and should not be used in place of the ordinary glasses. They are suitable only for so-called conical cornea, and for other cases of extraordinary visual defect.

They are not cosmetic aids. For simple farsightedness, nearsightedness, or astigmatism, the ordinary eyeglass is still the best corrective glass.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOAN WARING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a New York millionaire, meet in Memphis and fall in love. Later they become estranged through the scheming of BARBARA COURTNEY, who is trying to win Bob for herself.

PAT WARING, Joan's younger sister, is in an automobile accident in which JERRY FORRESTER, her escort, is killed. Heartsick, Pat runs away to New York. Joan follows and begins a search for Pat and also a search for a job.

Joan is engaged to sing in a night club owned by handsome BARNEY BLAKE, who proves himself a steadfast friend. Pat loses her job as a model in a wholesale house. Barney persuades Joan to move into the apartment where his stepmother lives to act as her companion.

A short time later Joan finds Pat very ill in a shabby rooming house. During Pat's convalescence Barney and Joan are drawn closer together. Joan reads that Barbara Courtney is in New York and will be the honor guest at a party given by Bob's father. Barney asks Joan to marry him and, believing Bob is lost to her, she agrees. Some weeks later Pat becomes Barney's secretary. She falls in love with him and Barney suddenly realizes it is Pat he cares for instead of Joan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

BARNEY, looking down at Pat, thought she seemed more like an angel than ever, her hair gleaming like an aureole of gold, her blue eyes shining, her lips curved.

"I'm trying to decide," he answered. "But, angel or devil, I don't like to see you running around with Vance Nicholas. Are you planning to marry that dumbbell?"

"Why, we're practically married," said Pat impishly. "All we need is a little time to get the license, a preacher and a wedding ring!"

She moved behind the desk as she spoke. Barney came nearer.

"When you talk like that it burns me up," he said hoarsely. "When you talk like that I want to box your ears. Pat, I want—"

Pat began breathlessly, afraid of the storm she had evoked, "I can't see why you have it in for Vance. He isn't especially brilliant but that might be a point in his favor. Why shouldn't I marry him if I want to? He has everything—family, money, a town house, a country place. What more could I want?"

She stopped then, finding it impossible to go on.

He reached out for her, drew her close in his arms and pressed his lips against hers in a long, hungry kiss. Pat kissed him back wildly.

"Oh, Barney, Barney!"

"Darling!"

Pat broke away from him then. Barney's arms, which had closed so fiercely around her a moment before, dropped to his side.

"Not any more," said Pat, groping for more words and failing to find them.

"No, of course not," said Barney. He went through the door, banging it noisily behind him.

• • •

NEXT morning Barney put his head in the office and said abruptly, "I want a little conversation with you, Pat. Get your hat."

They drove to a small eating place, a cheap restaurant where hungry people gathered and went about the business of satisfying their hunger, with no curiosity whatever about their neighbors' affairs.

Pat and Barney sat far back in the big room and moved the bacon and eggs on their plates in a pretense of eating, gazing desperately, unhappily into each other's eyes.

"You need a shave," said Pat. "You look terrible!"

"Couldn't sleep. Couldn't shave. I kept thinking about you. Thinking about us, Pat. I can't go through with it."

"Barney," said Pat in a frightened voice, "You mustn't say such things."

"I can't marry Joan," Barney said quietly. "It would be a horrible thing to do. I can't do it, loving you the way I love you. I'm going to tell her."

"Barney, listen to me!" said Pat. "You can't do that to Joan. She mustn't be hurt again. I couldn't bear it."

"Again?"

"You see she cared for someone else once, Barney. And he—well, nothing came of it."

"He didn't walk out on Joan?" Barney began indignantly. His expression was unbelieving.

"It was just that she was so sure and so happy. And then he stopped coming because he fell for another girl."

"Another girl chiseled in," Barney spoke slowly.

"Just exactly the same," said Pat. "Except that they weren't engaged like you and Joan. It would be a million times worse. And I'm her sister."

• • •

BARNEY was seeing things clearly now, in the light of this new knowledge. Things fell into place. Fitted. The whole pattern was there. Joan's sadness, the melancholy quality in her voice. It was that quality that had stirred him. It had been a long time before Joan had responded to his devotion. And when she had, he had missed something.

"We couldn't," said Pat. "Oh, Barney, I'll go away!"

"You can't go away," Barney said. Looking across at Pat, sitting there with the brave look in her eyes, he knew it was the one thing he couldn't stand—having Pat leave.

"I swear I'll be good," he promised. "I'll stop thinking about you. And I'll see to it that Joan never even guesses the truth. You and I would probably live a cat-and-dog life anyhow."

"Of course we would," encouraged Pat huskily.

"Joan and I think alike about so many things. You'd make me miserable, always hanging around my neck. Now, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, Barney," said Pat. "I'm afraid I would. I'd always be thinking something would run over you or something would fall down on your head."

"Or the earth would open up and swallow me. Oh, Pat, darling, I love you so!"

After that they just sat and stared at each other miserably until the small place was almost filled with other customers. Their plates had been removed and a waiter coughed apologetically.

"Anything more, sir?"

"No, nothing."

Pat glanced at her watch. Barney got to his feet, paid the cashier and they went out together into a day grown golden with sunshine.

When they reached the office Barney found some telephone calls waiting for him. He gave a number, waited and then held a brief conversation. "That," he said as he put down the telephone, "was Olive Wetherington, head of the Junior League. They want Joan to sing at some charity affair they're giving at a private home. You can see how famous your sister is getting."

He added wearily, "I told her Joan would come. Naturally it will be good publicity."

Pat plunged into the most intense activity. She revised her filing system which included a painstaking study of the old cards and substitution of many new ones. She rearranged pictures and indulged in a grand housecleaning that left no time for the gay banter and companionable talks with Barney that had been such happy interludes heretofore.

• • •

IT WAS not easy to avoid Barney's dark, unhappy gaze, and to avoid reference to the question that was a throbbing issue between them. There had been only one time when vigilance, the close guard, had been relaxed. That was one afternoon when it rained and Pat had come outside to find Barney waiting for her.

"I'll drive you home," he said gruffly.

"But, Barney, you don't need to. I was planning to take a taxi."

"Don't be a fool, Pat," Barney said shortly. He reached over and pulled her light coat closer about her throat. "Can't have you taking another cold," he said.

They turned on Riverside Drive, Barney explaining that he needed a little air and a short drive would be good for her too. He said she had been spending too much time in the office lately.

Barney was in a black mood. Pat began filling in the blank pauses in the conversation with descriptions of Memphis, such boastful descriptions that Barney was stirred into rejoinders.

There was the Pink Palace, Pat told him. It had started out to be a magnificent home, but eventually had become a museum. There was Chickasaw Gardens and near it a big yellow home with a tall iron fence and deep hedge, giving the foreign flavor of seclusion. Another home nearby of gracious southern simplicity, and the Crosby home, set in its own woodland.

"Well, you haven't General Grant's tomb in Memphis at any rate," Barney said with a gesture toward the imposing bulk they were nearing.

"But we have General Forrest's statue," Pat flashed back. "You should see it when it's covered with snow!"

Barney laughed and turned to look at her. The sober eyes, the droop to her lips, belied the gay note in her voice and drove him to sudden recklessness His arm went about her. "I'm only human," Barney said. "I want the woman I love!"

"We've got to go through with it," Pat said. "I can't marry you, Barney."

"You don't really love me then."

"You'd hate me some day if we hurt Joan like that."

Late that night Joan was awakened by the sound of sobbing. Deep, tearing sobs.

A BIG BROTHER OF US ALL
By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

If Washington was the Father of his Country, and Lincoln its savior in an hour of peril, Theodore Roosevelt was the Big Brother of us all, whose birthday we remember today with affection. He was so richly human, so high-hearted that he captured both the admiration and imagination of his generation, and became, in the eyes of the world, the incandescent incarnation of the new, uprising, prosperous, polyglot America in which he lived.

A brilliant and buoyant spirit—not "a mediocre intellect highly energized," as he described himself—he was one of the most picturesque and variously gifted men who ever sat in the White House. John Morley said he was a "cross between St. Vitus' dance and the Ten Commandments," a tribute alike to his activity and his moral passion. A great moralist, a protester against materialism, a practical idealist, his vitality, vivacity and versality made him the most many-sided and typical man of his time. He had neither racial rancor nor religious bigotry, and, like New York, the city in which he was born became prophetic of the new America in which many races and creeds mingle without fued.

Not simply a personality, he was an institution. No man of his day—except, perhaps, Mark Twain—was so taken into the hearts and homes of our people, even into the nursery where his name was given to Teddy Bear. A wholesome, happy man, there was no fear in his heart, no cynicism in his soul, and his letters to his children are a lovely legacy. A hunter, an explorer, he loved best to hunt the birds without a gun, and when in England he went birding with Earl Grey he was able to identify every bird except one by its song!

Indeed, he seemed to know everything, to have time for everything—he was so alert, so alive, so in love with life, so boyish withal, and fascinating. Yet in his hatred of sham, in his fight against the foul mud gods of his generation, he had a sharp sword and a sure thrust; never turning his back to a foe or upon a friends.

No one knows what it is in a man that capture the imagination; it is something which we can neither define nor resist—something magnetic, mystical, marvelous. No one can, no one tries to analyze it. It made "Teddy" Roosevelt a hero while he lived and a legend when he went up the Long Trail, leaving a lonesome place in our hearts.

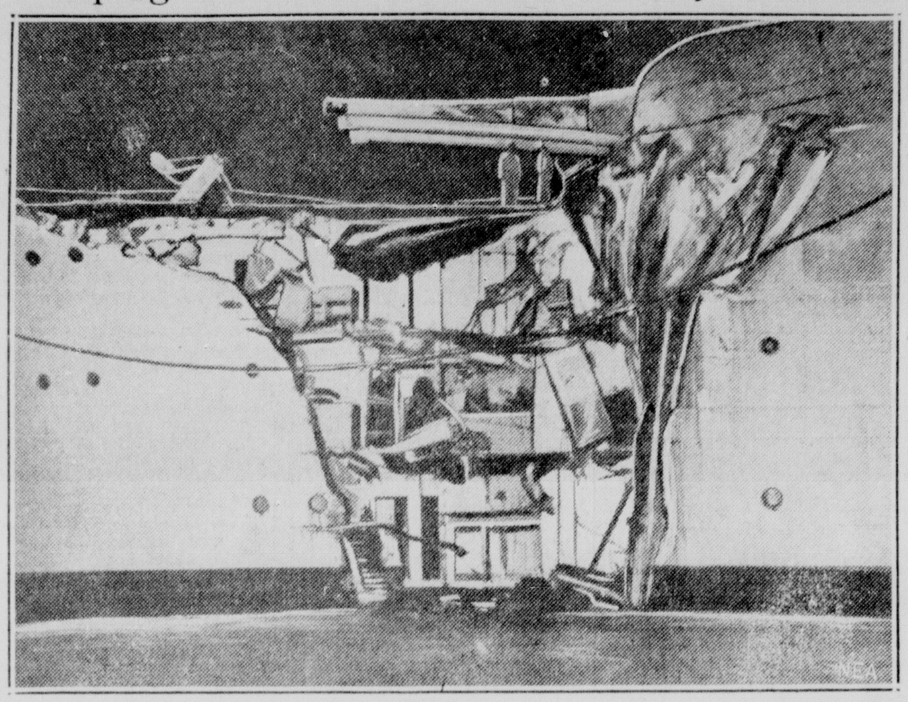
Gaping Hole Torn in U. S. Cruiser by Collision



With three officers dead and a gaping hole, 40 feet wide, torn in her prow, the U. S. cruiser Chicago limped into Mare Island navy yard in San Francisco Bay after a collision with a British freighter. Damage is shown above, where the prow of the freighter plowed through armor plate to almost amidships and scraped one of the guns, pictured near top. A "ghost ship" is sought, officers declaring that it loomed out of thick fog to throw the cruiser off her course, into the collision.

Brethren Church Notes

In addition to a shortage of food and money, there is a dearth of Bible knowledge and Bible living.

Any effort to encourage Bible reading and study is timely. Our denomination through the Board of Christian Education is encouraging a united simultaneous effort to read the New Testament, one chapter a day, beginning October 15, 1933 and continuing until July 1, 1934.

Several of our adults and young people have entered upon this course and we hope there will be many others. It is suggested that in each chapter we commit or at least mark the verse which is to us the most significant or helpful. The Bible is "the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the sailor's compass, the soldier's word, and the Chritian's charter. It should fill the mind, rule the heart and guide the feet."

Sunday school at 9:30.
Preaching at 10:30.
